Origin of the "gallo"

During one of Rafael Yglesias Castro's campaign activities - ex-president of Costa Rica known as "el gallo" (the rooster) because of the shape of his nose - a cook in charge of serving tortillas with refried beans, had the idea of placing a bean over a bent tortilla in a way that it resembled a rooster (to reference Mr. Yglesias).

Attendees liked this idea, and bent tortillas continued to be known as "gallos".
